Awesome Ants

Bring Lunch and Water

Snack Provided by:

In the morning we will make our own army of ants out of egg cartons. Next, we will perform the Readers Theater Hey Little Ant and come up our own convincing arguments as to why we shouldn't be squished. Next, we will test our balancing skills and pretend to be ants on a log trying to carry our giant leaves back to our ant hill.

Later, we will play the much ANTicipated, Ants go Marching Relay. Finish the day creating, and eating, marshmallow ants.

Tuesday, July 13

What's Hoppin'

Bring Lunch, Water and a Bathing Suit (weather permitting)

Snack Provided by:

Hop on in and turn your footprint into a grasshopper. Next, let's read the fable The Ant and the Grasshopper. After reading the fable, we will take the stage and perform a short readers theater using our ant and grasshopper art. Later, we'll be using our hopping feet to improve our watery high jump jump skills.

Wednesday, July 14

All Wrapped Up

Bring Lunch and Water

Snack Provided by:

Lets get spinning and start our day creating a salt and glue spider web. While we wait for a webs to set, we'll practice catching some prey with our toilet paper spinnerets and wrap our fellow friends the best we can to keep them from escaping. Once our webs have set we'll take them into the sun to watch them sparkle and watercolor them. Things will get a little sticky as we try to launch our spiders into our giant sticky web.

Thursday, July 15

Snails

Bring Lunch and Water and a shell fit for a snail

Snack Provided by:

In the morning, let's make a snail fit for a shell by using clay to design a snail that would love to call our shell a home. Next, we will have human snail races and see who can cross the slime line first. Later, we'll venture into our slime lab and create our own magnificent snail slime. We'll finish the day creating and enjoying some dirt cups.
